Executive Summary

The fourth iteration of the Calgary Public Teachers class size census was conducted on 2017 December 5. This report provides readers with a snapshot of the class sizes and complexities with which students and teachers must contend. The information is presented in both graphical and tabular format for the reader.

Class sizes have fluctuated over the past four years. While size and complexity increased between 2014 and 2015, it declined in 2016. 2017 witnessed an overall increase in class sizes, particularly pronounced at the Kindergarten and High School levels.

Measures of classroom complexity – the concentration of ELL and students with Individual Program Plans (IPPs) – increased steadily from 2014 through 2016 and have remained relatively stable in 2017. Most distressing, however, is the sharp decline in classroom supports in the form of additional staff (educational assistants). Once again, high schools and kindergarten classrooms are losing this support more than in other grades.

In the graphs presented, the reader will note reference to Alberta's Commission on Learning (ACOL)¹, which undertook a significant review of Alberta's Education system and produced a report in October 2003 that recommended the implementation of class size guidelines.

Those guidelines were as follows:

Kindergarten to Grade 3	17 students
Grades 4 to 6	23 students
Grades 7 to 9	25 students
Grades 10 to 12	27 students

(ACOL Recommendation 14, P. 61)

That same recommendation also added:

"Generally, classes with special needs students, students whose first language is not English, and vulnerable and at-risk students should be smaller than the guideline."
(ACOL, P. 61)

Further on that same page the commission continued:

"The Province should provide adequate funding to enable school jurisdictions to meet the class size guidelines. Information on average class sizes should be included in school jurisdiction profiles and used to determine provincial funding levels."

The Government of Alberta accepted these recommendations.

Division 1 classrooms (grades K through 3) continue to lead the district in the proportion of classes that exceed the ACOL guidelines, consistent with previous years; however, the proportion exceeding the guidelines is increasing. More than 90% of students in Division 1 are in classrooms that exceed the guideline, with a staggering 95% of grade 3 students in classes that exceed the guideline.

It is worth noting that, in the case of the Calgary Board of Education, at no grade level were the ACOL class size guidelines achieved, even without consideration for special needs students. Even as complexity remains persistently high, supports in the form of education assistants are largely being removed from classrooms, placing an even greater burden on teachers to cope with a dizzying array of student needs, and classrooms that are bursting at the seams.
